

JORDAN LEVIN

S U M M A R Y

A proven creator, operator, and strategist in both traditional and new media, Levin has been instrumental in launching and managing numerous entertainment franchises that have left a lasting impact on popular culture over three and a half decades as an enterprising network and studio executive, Emmy-award winning producer, director, and digital entrepreneur. Acknowledged for his insightful understanding of youthful audiences, Levin's experience spans a broad range of content genres in both long and short-form series and film, including scripted comedy and drama, unscripted formats, reality, documentary, news, podcasting, animation, branded entertainment, and live events. Considered a prominent thought leader, innovative builder, and collaborative partner, Levin has been recognized by many publications and organizations for his forward-thinking influence across the entertainment, sports, advertising, and technology communities. A frequent keynote speaker, moderator, panelist, and presenter, he is also a published author and Professor of Practice, and has lent his strategic acumen to a variety of boards, including non-profit organizations, industry associations, academic institutions, political advocacy groups, sports organizations, and early-stage media companies.

WARNER BROS. DISCOVERY ■ AUSTIN, TX

2019 – 2024

Rooster Teeth

Chief Executive Officer, General Manager

- Recruited to stabilize and restructure Rooster Teeth after years of aggressive investment fueled speculative growth initiatives. A dynamic media and entertainment company, Rooster Teeth built a rabidly passionate community of engaged fans around the world with original content that drove a diversified business model of direct subscription membership, advertising sales and sponsorships, content production, licensing and distribution, events, and e-commerce revenue, all which Levin oversaw. Under his leadership, the company implemented operational rigor, introduced best practices around culture, and explored strategic alternatives for integration and sales options. In addition to these tactical changes, he accelerated key growth areas, including podcasting and third-party studio production, ensured value preservation of its core businesses and revenue streams, and implemented both the meaningful corporate integration and external sale of the company's premium proprietary assets.

NBCUNIVERSAL MEDIA ■ SANTA MONICA, CA

2017 – 2018

Awesomeness

Chief Executive Officer

- Recruited by NBCUniversal to evaluate the majority stake in Awesomeness it acquired following its purchase of DreamWorks Animation and oversee the growth of the multiplatform media company's leading digital networks serving the Gen-Z audience - AwesomenessTV, DreamWorksTV, and Awestruck - its world-class film and television studio, responsible for hits like the Netflix feature film "To All the Boys I've Loved Before" and Hulu's critically-acclaimed "PEN15," its full-fledged creative agency, Wildness, and the Awesomeness Creator Network, a global talent community. Successfully initiated and facilitated the sale of Awesomeness to Viacom in 2018.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE ■ CULVER CITY, CA – NYC, NY – MOUNT LAUREL, NJ

2015 – 2017

Chief Content Officer

- Managed the league's comprehensive content portfolio including its expansive creative and production infrastructure across the NFL Network, its digital properties, NFL.com and NFL Mobile, newsroom, social media channels, NFL Films, event programming, such as the Super Bowl Halftime Show and NFL Honors, and external partnerships. During this period, Levin launched numerous critically acclaimed and award-winning series including, “Good Morning Football” on the NFL Network, and “All or Nothing” on Amazon Prime, along with supervising the “Hard Knocks” franchise for HBO, Thursday Night Football, and the league’s multimedia coverage of Super Bowl’s 50 and LI.

MICROSOFT ▪ SANTA MONICA, CA – REDMOND, WA

2014

Xbox Entertainment Studios

Executive Vice President, General Manager

- Recruited in early 2014 to join Microsoft’s nascent Xbox Entertainment Studios division as Executive Vice President, General Manager tasked with coordinating the launch of an interactive, video-on-demand programming service creating original premium content for the global, over-the-top Xbox platform. Managed scripted and unscripted development, production and programming, business and legal affairs, finance, marketing, sales, strategic planning, and business development, while collaborating closely with the interactive and product design group. Oversaw the global release of an interactive, competition reality series celebrating street soccer against the backdrop of the World Cup, an interactive “Bonnaroo” live event experience, a documentary series including “Atari: Game Over,” production of a stand-alone film based on the “Halo” video game franchise, as well as the development of the “Halo” drama series for Showtime. Soon thereafter, newly installed Microsoft CEO, Satya Nadella, announced strategic plans to reorient the company around its core capabilities resulting in the wind down of XES activities.

ALLOY DIGITAL (LATER DEFY MEDIA) ▪ BEVERLY HILLS, CA – NYC, NY

2012 – 2014

President

- Alloy Digital acquired Generate in December 2011 to form a first-of-its-kind, multiplatform media company. Served as President of the new entity, combining Generate’s assets with Alloy Digital’s top-ranked channels and proprietary networks. Helped facilitate the cultivation and subsequent integration of five corporate acquisitions and assisted in securing Series-A funding from private equity firm ABS Capital. Alloy Digital subsequently merged with Break Media in Fall 2013 to form Defy Media, a vertically integrated enterprise consolidating content development, talent management, production, marketing, sales, and distribution.
- During this period, retained Generate CEO duties including studio development and production, branded entertainment, and talent management, while including worldwide content syndication, integrated marketing, publicity, social media, and research oversight, in addition to partnership responsibilities for the owned-and-operated channels, network, sales, and business development.

GENERATE ▪ SANTA MONICA, CA – NEW YORK, NY

2005 – 2014

Founder & Chief Executive Officer

- Partnered with leading media executives in 2005 to build Generate, a first-mover, full-service studio and talent management company that successfully developed and produced fiction and factual entertainment, in addition to customized branded content, experiential marketing events, and live tours, becoming a leading connector for entertainment, advertising, and technology companies across traditional and digital platforms. In 2008, Generate secured a Series-A round of financing from Fuse Capital and MK Capital, with a follow-on round in 2010.

WARNER BROS. ENTERTAINMENT ▪ BURBANK, CA – NYC, NY

1994 – 2004

The WB Television Network (now The CW)

Chief Executive Officer ▪ 2003-2004

President, Programming ▪ 2001-2003

Co-President, Programming ▪ 2000-2001

Executive Vice President, Programming ▪ 1998-2000

Senior Vice President, Development ▪ 1996-1998

Vice President, Development and Current Programming ▪ 1994-1996

- Joined The WB in 1994 as part of its founding executive team, spending a decade helping to launch, build and brand America’s most successful broadcast network targeting young adult audiences through hit programs like “Dawson’s Creek,” “Buffy the Vampire Slayer,” “Felicity,” “Smallville,” “Gilmore Girls,” “The Jamie Foxx Show,” “The Steve Harvey Show,” “Reba,” “The Surreal Life,” “Everwood,” and “One Tree Hill,” many of which provided young writers, like Greg Berlanti, J.J. Abrams, Ryan Murphy, Joss Whedon, and Kevin Williamson, with the opportunity to create and executive produce their first television series, while introducing a new generation of on-screen talent to audiences. Rising through the ranks, became sole president of entertainment in 2001 adding Kids’ WB!, the top-rated children’s network among boys 6-to-11 and tweens 9-14 fueled by hits like “Pokémon,” “Yu-Gi-Oh!,” “Jackie Chan Adventures,” “What’s New Scooby-Doo?” and “The Batman,” and two years later became the youngest CEO in broadcast television history including oversight of the programming, sales, marketing, publicity, business affairs, scheduling, acquisitions, research, and online divisions. 18 months after departing, The WB merged with UPN to create The CW Network.
